

Paylogic is an innovative and rising company operating in the entertainment industry. It is primarily specializing in internet and ticketing-technology and the services attached to. Paylogic was founded in 2006 in the Netherlands and is today selling several million of tickets for over 700 promoters and organizations.

After a successful expansion to Germany we are now advertising for our Berlin's headquarter, at the earliest date, a further

Junior Sales Manager

You are enthusiastic and highly motivated to form success in a young, professional team? Then we offer you excellent career possibilities! Ideally you have already gathered practical experience in sales and have a university degree or a comparable qualification.

Responsibilities include:

- support of sales manager in customer acquisition
- independent customer acquisition and setup of a customer network
- co-determination in further development of products and services
- customer support
- development of attractive services and implementation of planned actions
- close co-operation with external counterparts (promoters, labels, etc.)

Your profile:

- first experience in direct customer contact
- strong interest in different distribution channels
- you think and act output-driven
- proficient in presentation techniques
- self-assured behaviour and flexibility
- strong communication skills and you are reliable and trustworthy
- you are experienced in customer acquisition and setting up a customer network
- fluent in German, profound knowledge of English

Our Offer:

If you want to complete our team in a young and successful company, please send your application documents and the earliest date of availability including your salary expectations to:

sascha.dewald@paylogic.de, Mr.Sascha Dewald, head of sales